Purpose and scope

Apoyos de Respuesta Rápida (ARRs) are a funding modality of FAU-LAC. They are intended to provide immediate assistance during unforeseen crises, including to human-rights defenders and social movements facing unforeseen crisis situations. The programme's stated objective is immediate assistance in those crises.

The geographic focus is Regional. The supplied page does not enumerate eligible countries. The programme describes its support as rapid and flexible, enabling movements and organisations to respond to risks, continue their work and act at key moments. The ARRs modality is oriented to assistance in crisis situations.

Funding

The standard maximum contribution per ARRs proposal is USD 8,000. Projects may run for up to 6 months. These are the stated ceiling and duration for the support.

When an application includes collective-care actions, the per-proposal funding ceiling may be up to USD 10,000. This higher ceiling applies to applications with those actions; the standard maximum remains USD 8,000 for ARRs applications.

Who can apply

Eligible applicants are civil-society organisations or collectives of women, feminist or transfeminist, and sex- or gender-diverse people. The applicant class includes both organisations and collectives.

Partners may apply without official registration in the country. When cisgender men participate in an applicant organisation, leadership must be held by women or sex- or gender-diverse people. These are the stated conditions concerning registration and leadership for applicants.

Priorities

Eligible activities include protection strategies for activists and their organisations when they are at risk or under threat. The call also allows actions responding to strategic opportunities to defend and promote the rights of women and gender-diverse people. These are eligible activities described for the ARRs.
